DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed February 2, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In response to the 112, first paragraph rejection, applicant asserts, "the Flow-Thru Chip is referred to by Applicant as an exemplary embodiment only and therefore Applicant is fully entitled to any equivalent structures within the meaning of its claims." Applicant further provided a number of locations in which applicant believes such a statement is supported. The examiner is unsure if the page and line number are from the original specification or the substitute specification (which has no line numbers). However, the examiner has reviewed the specification and has not found a statement which states the analysis chip may be any equivalent structure to that of the Flow-Thru Chip. While the applicant may intend for the Flow-Thru Chip to be an exemplary embodiment, no other embodiments or analysis chip configurations are given in the specification. It is clear the not just any analysis chip will function within the device as claimed. An analysis chip can simply be considered a number of different structures. For example, any substrate with a channel, cavity, capillary, etc or area in which detection may occur by means of a reactive indicator, or be subjected to optical analysis (as well as others). The analysis chip must be of a particular configuration to support the operation of the instant invention. Since there are no other examples or configurations disclosed the examiner assumes only the Flow-Thru Chip structure is adequate for the function of the device. If applicant insists on maintaining the same position, the examiner hereby invites applicant to point out the location as well as provide the specific passage which states the analysis chip can be any equivalent structure to that of the Flow-Thru Chip. While the trademark may not be used in the claims, the scope of the term "analysis chip" only includes that which applicant has disclosed, the configuration of the Flow-Thru Chip.

For reasons given herein the previous 112, first paragraph, rejection is hereby maintained.

In view of the amendment/remarks the previous 103 rejections are hereby withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 1-2 and 6-9 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for use of the Flow-Thru Chip, does not reasonably provide enablement for any other analysis chip configuration (as stated by applicant in the remarks of 2/6/06). The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make the invention commensurate in scope with these claims. (see Response to Arguments).

Conclusion

3. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP

§ 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
